

Unemployment Drop Cited by Ike as Evidence

By EDWARD COWAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower said today there is ample evidence that the economic decline is flattening out, but nothing to warrant a categorical conclusion that an upturn has started.

The President's news conference views on the recession were echoed by Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, who told the U.S. Chamber of Commerce convention.

"We're not out of the woods yet, but I believe we can look forward to resumption of increased activity in the not-too-distant future," Weeks said. He expected a business pick-up "in the late summer or fall."

Must Study Tax Cut
The President's remarks were in response to a question about Tuesday's government report that mid-April unemployment dropped by 78,000—the first drop since the recession started but well below the usual drop for this time of the year. There were still 6,120,000 unemployed.

Hempstead Leads in Measles

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Three childhood diseases—shot upward again in Arkansas for the week ending last Saturday, the State Board of Health revealed today in its weekly morbidity report.

A total of 242 new cases of measles was reported, compared with 24 the previous week and 34 the same week a year ago. The total for the year was boosted to 11,979, compared with 876 a year ago. Hempstead county led the state with 76 cases, followed by Clark with 73, Ouachita with 46, and Lincoln with 35.

German measles jumped to 111 from 35 the previous week and none the same week a year ago. The total for the year mounted to 1,357, compared with only 294 at the same time last year. Ouachita county topped the state with 75 cases, followed by Pope county with 20.

Chickenpox jumped from 17 to 27 last week, and the year's total of 450 just passed the 452 a year ago.

A total of 17 cases of jumps last week was unchanged from the week before, and the 253 for the year to date is still well below the 581 at the same time last year.

No new cases of polio were reported for the week, while one new case was listed last week. The total for the year is four, compared with nine a year ago.

Cotton Men Discuss 3 Year Program
Last night Hempstead county cotton farmers met to discuss the National cotton program for the next three years and longer at a meeting sponsored by the Hempstead County Farm Bureau.

The cotton program explained by H. T. Baber of Arkadelphia, SW District Director of Organization of the Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation, provides for the cotton program developed by American Farm Bureau Federation Board of Directors in accord with principles set forth by the official voting delegates of the member State Farm Bureau Federation Board of Directors in accord with principles set forth by the official voting delegates of the member State Farm Bureaus at last December's AFBF annual meeting.

As presented by Mr. Baber the proposed cotton bill which has been introduced in the House of Representatives provides farmers a choice of the 1950 crop of cotton between (a) price support, an acreage allotments determined under present law and (b) price support, 15 percentage points below (a) and allotments 40 percent above (a).

For the 1950 crop of cotton producers would have approximately the same choice as in 1959 except the level of support for choice (b) would be 90 percent of the average market price during 1957, 1958 and 1959. This market price is based on the 14 spot (cash) markets designated by USDA. The price support could not be less than 85 percent of the one for farmers selecting the higher support and regular (lower) acreage allotments.

Farmers would be notified by county ASC committees of their allotments under both plans and the applicable levels of price supports. Farmers should notify the committee of their choices. Those failing to give notification within the time specified would be considered as selecting lower acreage and higher supports as presently provided by law.

Farmers selecting choice (a) (high support and low acreage) would only be eligible for a loan for 90 days. Such cotton and other stocks of cotton owned by CCC would be offered by CCC for sale to the public at 10 percent above the support price to those farmers selecting choice (b) (lower support) or the market price, whichever is higher.

The new approach for cotton as provided in the proposed legislation is to make cotton more competitive both at home and abroad, to extend acreage for more efficiency, to give supports to the market and get away from price fixing, and to work toward a one-price system.

About 35 farmers attended last night's meeting which was presided over by N. B. Coleman, president of the local County Farm Bureau. B. E. Garrett, member of the Crops Committee of the state organization assisted with the discussion.

Residents to Form 'Pioneer Washington'

A large group of residents met at Washington last night and made plans to organize and incorporate a "Pioneer Washington" organization.

Purpose of the non-profit benevolent corporation is to restore, mark, preserve and maintain historical sites in and around Washington as an education and tourist attraction.

Washington is one of the most "historical" points in Arkansas and was the Confederate State Capital during the Civil War. The old Capitol has been restored with the aid of state funds and is viewed by many hundreds of visitors each year.

Perhaps the town's best claim to fame is the Bowie knife which James Black forged for Jim Bowie. It is the plan of the organization to restore such points of fame as the blacksmith shop where the famous knife was made, old taverns etc.

Aiding in the preliminary organization last night were Rep. Talbot Feldt Jr., who will serve as resident agent for the organization and Judge James H. Pilkinton.

A petition for organization was filed today in Hempstead Circuit Court.

Brown said he was "fooling" with the pistol in his back yard when the incident occurred.

Woman Killed, Two Hurt at Jonesboro

JONESBORO (UP)—One woman was killed and two persons hospitalized as the result of a collision between two pickup trucks on highway 39 nine miles south of here Tuesday night.

State police said the woman was Sue Renck, 27, of route four, Jonesboro. Her husband, Ray Renck, driver of one of the trucks, was sent to a hospital with chest and back injuries.

Authorities said the driver of the other pickup was Lavada Arie of Newport. She was hospitalized with head injuries. A passenger in her truck, James S. Skinner of Batesville, suffered minor lacerations.

Bill to Override High Court Gets Group Approval

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee approved, 10-5, today a controversial bill to restrict or override Supreme Court decisions on security risks case.

The vote came on a watered-down version of a bill by Sen. William E. Jenner (R-Ind.) which would have entirely abolished the high tribunal's jurisdiction in five fields.

As approved by the committee, only one of these strongest provisions was retained in the bill. It would bar the Supreme Court from ruling on any case involving admission to practice law in state courts.

The other three sections of the modified measure would amend existing laws with the effect of wiping out recent Supreme Court decisions. They would:

—Make congressional committees the sole judges of whether questions asked during hearings are pertinent to legislative matters. Under a recent court decision, this might be a matter of interpretation by the courts.

—Restore to the states the power to enforce their own anti-subversive laws. The court has ruled that the Internal Security Act gave the federal government sole jurisdiction in this field.

—Amend the Smith Act to make it a crime simply to teach or advocate the overthrow of the government. This would remove the necessity of showing a "clear and present danger," as required by another high court ruling.

Investigating City Officer Rowe reported the front end of both vehicles were heavily damaged in the accident which occurred during a heavy rain.

High, Low U. S. Temperatures

NEW YORK (UP)—Highest temperature in the nation Tuesday was 96 at Laredo and Presidio, Tex., the U.S. Weather Bureau said. The lowest this morning was 0 at Fraser, Colo.

The alleged assailant, Bruce Zator of North Massapequa, was picked up by police a mile from the school half an hour after the killing. He was being questioned at police headquarters at Mineola.

The shooting in this suburban Long Island high school followed by four days a similar pointblank killing of a 17-year-old youth gang leader in a Bronx candy store. A 20-year-old rival gang member has been indicted for first degree murder in that case. He had been quoted as saying he shot his rival because he gave him "a dirty look."

Police said young Wall and two friends had beat up Zator two weeks ago. The two boys quarreled again Tuesday, they said, and Zator plotted his revenge.

Zator came to school early today and hid in the washroom adjoining the school locker room.

Tax Relief for Railways Is Favored

WASHINGTON (UP)—A Senate Commerce subcommittee recommended tax relief, guaranteed loans and more flexible rate-making today as part of an 11-point plan to help cure the economic ills of the railroads.

Chairman George A. Smathers (D-Fla.) said the program was aimed "specifically" at helping the financially distressed rail carriers. But he said it also would be of benefit to truckers, bus operators, water carriers and the airlines.

Smathers said the five-man subcommittee was in "general agreement" on the plan but that one member—Sen. Frank Lausche (D-Ohio)—planned to file exceptions to some of its points.

Remedies proposed by the subcommittee were similar in some respects to those offered by the administration but were broader in scope.

Eight were to be incorporated in a bill to be submitted to it's full Commerce Committee; while three were recommendations for action by other Senate groups.

N. Y. Youth Shoots, Kills a Student

MASSAPEQUA, N.Y. (UP)—A 15-year-old boy accused a classmate in the washroom of Massapequa High School before classes today, shouted "You creep!" and killed him with a single blast from a shotgun, police said.

Nassau County Detective Chief Stryver Pinnell said the dead boy, Timothy Wall, and his assailant had been involved in a fight several weeks ago and had quarreled again Tuesday. He said the motive was "revenge."

The alleged assailant, Bruce Zator of North Massapequa, was picked up by police a mile from the school half an hour after the killing. He was being questioned at police headquarters at Mineola.

The shooting in this suburban Long Island high school followed by four days a similar pointblank killing of a 17-year-old youth gang leader in a Bronx candy store. A 20-year-old rival gang member has been indicted for first degree murder in that case. He had been quoted as saying he shot his rival because he gave him "a dirty look."

Police said young Wall and two friends had beat up Zator two weeks ago. The two boys quarreled again Tuesday, they said, and Zator plotted his revenge.

Zator came to school early today and hid in the washroom adjoining the school locker room.

Wall was coming his hair before a mirror, police said, when he saw Zator coming up behind him with the weapon. He wheeled to face him and was shot in the chest, dying instantly.

Pruden, told the Council he talked with Faubus four days ago.

U. S. Releases Egyptian Frozen Funds

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Treasury announced today it has released Egyptian funds frozen in this country when Egypt seized the Suez Canal in July, 1956.

A terse announcement said the Treasury took the move "under advice of the State Department."

It said the action will be effective Thursday.

The government thus lifted a ban on the use of U.S. dollars belonging to both the Egyptian government and the Suez Canal Co.

The government froze the assets on July 31, 1956.

Today's announcement said they were released for use "pending clarification of the situation," which has now been brought about by the agreement recently concluded between the government of the United Arab Republic (Egypt and Syria) and the canal company.

Representatives of Egypt and the company concluded an agreement in Rome Tuesday to compensate stockholders of the canal company for Egypt's seizure of the vital water link between the Mediterranean and the Red Sea.

Heavy Rains Limit State Crop Planting

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Heavy rains over the weekend limited some field work on Arkansas farms, and will force some replanting by farmers in the south-east section, the Crop Reporting Service said today.

Some progress was made in preparing seedbeds, however, and planting on uplands continued during the week, the Reporting Service said.

"But field work was quite limited on most lowland," El Dorado, Crossett and Hamburg had from 10 to 14 inches of rain.

The soil continued too cool for seed to germinate properly, and clear, warm weather is needed. The report was based on growing conditions to noon Tuesday.

Progress Limited
Land preparation and cotton planting, made limited progress during the week because of wet soil. Cool, damp weather retarded germination, and some replanting is up to good stands in the east-central and southern counties.

Corn planting continued as weather conditions permitted. Much of the acreage of early corn has been planted in some counties, but only a limited acreage in others. Early plantings were up to a good stand in a number of counties, but replanting will be necessary in some fields.

Robt. J Brown, Attorney of Little Rock, Files

By LLOYD HOLBECK
United Press Staff Correspondent

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Robert J. Brown, a Little Rock attorney, announced today for the Democratic nomination for governor of Arkansas, snapping the lock on a four-man race for the July 20 primary.

Brown paid his $1,500 filing fee and issued a statement to newsmen. He said the "three other 'fervent' candidates would tear themselves apart, and he would be 'around to gather up the pieces.'"

Gov. Orval E. Faubus had announced for a third term, and drew opposition from Chancellor Lee Ward of Paragould and Chris Pinkbush of Little Rock.

Before the noon filing deadline J. Vance Clendon drew opposition to re-election as state treasurer. Ed Taylor of McCrory, a former Woodruff county judge and now in the furniture business at Augusta, announced Taylor ran for and was defeated as Land Commissioner two years ago.

Former State Senator Jim Johnson of Crossett came out against Justice Minor W. Millwee for the Supreme Court and Griffin Smith Jr., of Little Rock, a son of the late Chief Justice Griffin Smith, announced against Justice Ed F. McPadden.

Earlier in the morning, the Fifth Congressional race drew a third candidate, forcing the vote to the people in the July primary. E. M. Harrington of Conway County announced, opposing Rep. Brooks Hays of Little Rock, seeking re-election; and Amis Guthridge, Little Rock attorney, who announced Tuesday.

Fletcher Files
W. E. (Buck) Fletcher of Lonoke, a former member of the Arkansas House and Senate, announced just before the deadline for Congress from the Sixth Arkansas District. He will oppose Rep. W. F. Norrell of Monticello, who already had announced for re-election.

The third Arkansas district had drawn its fourth candidate. Tuesday, when Lee M. Whitaker of Fort Smith announced. He will oppose Rep. J. W. Trimble of Berryville, Chancellor Franklin Wilder of Fort Smith, and Donald Poe of Waldron.

Jack Holt, a former defeated candidate for governor, apparently considered announcing for governor until the stroke of 12. At 11:50 a.m., he handed Democratic Party Secretary Frank Robbins, Jr., of Conway $1,500.

"I don't think I'm going to run for anything, I just wanted to look it over," the Little Rock attorney told Robbins.

When the deadline had passed, he took back the money he had given Robbins, and showed newsmen a pledge he had filed out to be ready to file.

It was for governor.

Newkirk Was With A's on Look Basis

By UNITED PRESS

Pitcher Dave Newkirk, taken to spring training by the parent Kansas City Athletics on a "look see" basis, isn't exactly burning up the International League, but he's the only Buffalo hurler thus far this season to give manager Phil Cavaretta a decently pitched game.

The 24-year-old Newkirk, who had an 11-14 record last year with the Shreveport club in the Texas League, was given a chance to start a game by Cavaretta Tuesday night "when none of my other pitchers showed a thing" and he made them of the opportunity.

Mixing a live fast ball with an average curve, Newkirk set the Richmond Virginians down on seven hits as the Blons snapped a three game losing streak with a 3-2 decision. It was only Buffalo's third win of the season in 13 games and the club's first complete game by a starting pitcher.

It was the only game played. A scheduled contest between the Columbus Jets and the Rochester Red Wings at Rochester was postponed because of rain.

Frankie Ryff Has Dollar Gleam in Eye

TODAY'S SPORT PARADE
(Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.)
BY OSCAR FRALEY

United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—This was a spring day six years ago and the handsome, blond youngster betrayed his happiness with life by the way the dollar mark glistened in his bright blue eyes.

Frankie Ryff had it made. He had come out of a poor neighborhood with a classic boxing style and at 20 was being mentioned as a future lightweight champion of the world. He had won seven straight pro bouts and, as the saying goes, in the fight mob, nobody had laid a glove on him.

That was six years ago. But the gleam is gone from those blue eyes today. Frankie is only 26. Yet he is walking slowly up boxing's dead end street because he cuts so easily. A poor business investment, stripped him of his savings and his manager has advised him to quit fighting.

"What else can I do?" He shrugs helplessly.

Said Differently

He said it in a different way that day six years ago. Then he didn't know that there were jagged bones in his forehead which would slit the skin from within under the impact of heavy blows. In those days he bubbled:

"My mother didn't want me to fight but what else can I do. She said I'd be a street corner bum. Sure, I can work in a gas station, or something. But this way I can make a lot of money and make her proud of me."

But those six years weren't good to Frankie Ryff. Frankie would have stepped down in 1956 when he was sliced up by Larry Boardman. He figured it was time. Besides, he and a relative had started a dry cleaning business—with Frankie's money—and it supposedly was the business. Frankie recalls, doing well.

"I told him I was coming into."

"But when I get around there, the place is locked up and my relative has pulled out for California. It was a case of horses, dolls and high living. I was stuck with $6,000 in debt."

Underwent Operation

So Frankie underwent an operation last June to cure the ragged, jagged edges which tore him

Unemployment

000 jobless.

The President also said the executive and legislative branches must give the question of cutting taxes a close study before making any move.

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower said today that the April drop in unemployment is an example of the continued and emphatic evidence that the recession is flattening out.

But the President told his weekly news conference he does not believe that the 70,000 decline in unemployment reported Tuesday warrants a conclusion that an economic upturn has started.

He noted that, with a seasonal adjustment, the unemployment figures could not be interpreted quite as favorably.

As for a possible tax cut, the President said it is a matter that have a very close and studious analysis before making any real move in that direction.

Praise for Nixon

In other news conference highlights, the President:

—Said emphatically that he has no intention of resigning in favor of Vice President Richard M. Nixon as long as he feels he is capable of doing the job. He said he took on the duties of the office and he is going to perform them as long as he is able.

—Said he and Nixon are very warm friends and he admires and respects him. But the President said he has no intention of hand-picking him as his successor. He said that is a matter for the Republican Party. He said it has a lot of good men both in and outside government. But he said he is trying to keep Nixon as well-informed about government policy and operations as he can in the event that he should become incapacitated and Nixon would have to take over.

—Said he was saddened rather than irritated by Russia's brusque rejection of his proposal to set up an air inspection system in the Arctic zone to allay mutual suspicions of surprise attack across the pole. He said his proposal was made sincerely and honestly and not to core a propaganda point. He expressed hope the Kremlin will reconsider.

Defends Reorganization Plan

—Gave a flat no in answer to a question whether the administration might bend some on its defense reorganization plan in light of the continued strong opposition from some influential congressmen. He went on to say that every possible concession had been made to each of the individual services before his plan was sent to Congress. He said the essential of the plan are to him mind mandatory if the United States is to be properly defended and as economical as possible.

Any retreat from the essential designed for unity of military strategy would be inexcusable, he said.

—But he said he does not believe merger of the Army, Navy and Air Force into one service would be a good thing, even theoretically. He said it would wipe out the traditional morale and pride of the nation's fighting men in their particular individual services.

—Said that the whole policy of the United States is based on developing cleaner atomic bombs which can be used for attacks on military targets without endangering the civilian population of a large area. He made the statement when asked about the charge of Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-N.M.) that some U.S. bombs had been taken out of the stockpile and made dirtier.

He said that as far as he knew, no military officer had ever suggested such a thing. He said at least officially they hadn't.

—Defended his frequent out-of-town trips with a statement that he believed that he could do a better overall job that way. He said he didn't see where it made a great deal of difference whether the President stayed in Washington all the time. And he said he did not believe the President, or a business executive for that matter, could do the best job on the things that really count by staying at a desk and keeping his face at a desk and keeping his face in a stack of papers all the time. The real job of the president, he said, is to keep your mind free of inchoquent details—such as what man should have what job—so that he can concentrate on his own thinking about basic principles and make fair judgments in the big problems.

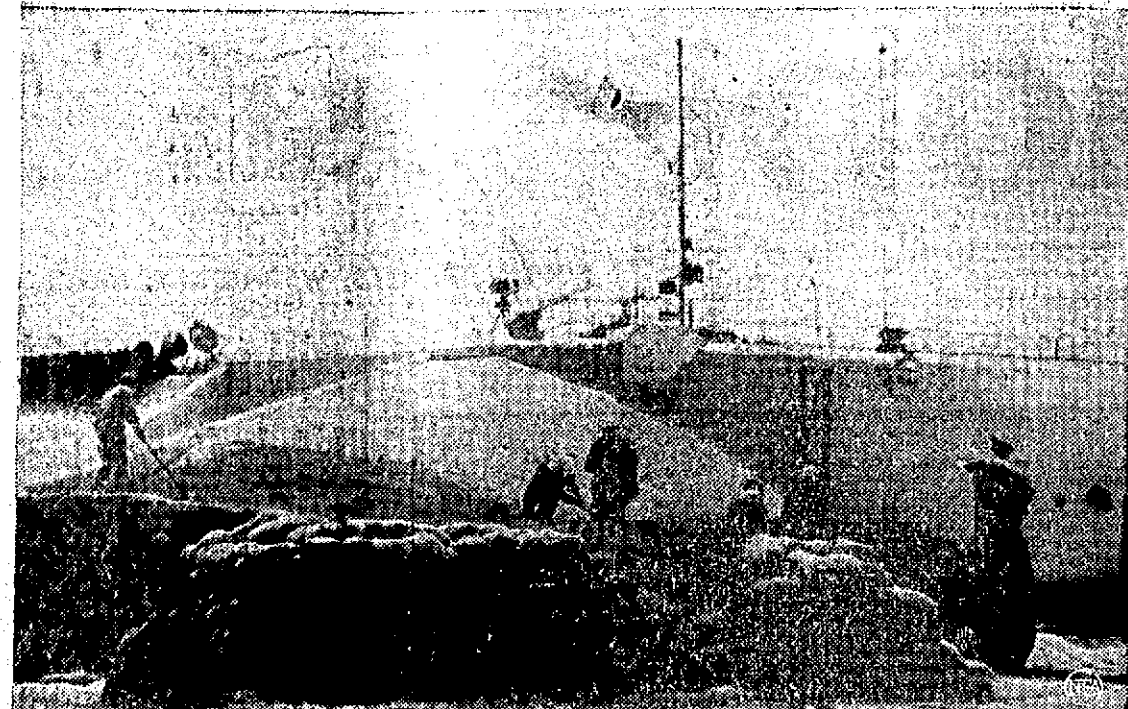

from within and last December, after eight months of inaction, he began a comeback. He won two in a row without cutting and his hopes were high. But then in his third comeback win, he was slashed up again in the final round. He was ready to quit in disgust but, as he says:

"What else can I do?"

So Monday night, and maybe you saw him on television, he scored an easy win over Johnny Gorman. Frankie wasn't out. But much of that can be attributed to the fact that it was a walk and Gorman didn't land hard enough.

Frankie wasn't happy with his effort. And, while he stood there, patting the racket, he looks like a guy who's been hit by a train.

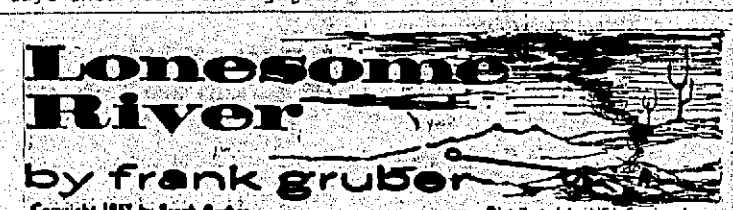

He said, "Charlie Black, his manager, said: 'He hasn't got it any more. He's too careful of his eyes.'"

Dawn found Weber in sight of Lobo Dam and when he saw the little cabin atop the dam he was reminded that he had eaten nothing since late morning of the day before, more than 20 hours.

He found a heavy stick of wood, drove it into the ground and staked out the horse on the cowboy's lass, which would give it some 30 feet of grazing area.

He ran quickly toward the cement stairs, that led up to the dam and began to mount them. He was halfway up when a voice suddenly called down to him.

"That's far enough!"

Weber stopped and looked up at the head of the stairs, a rifle pointing down at Weber.

Weber called up, "I was here to see you the other night."

"Yep, you sure was," replied the caretaker. "I had no business to let you up here then and I sure ain't goin' to let you now. You get down, Mister, and climb atop that horse of yours and highball it out of here."

Weber groaned. He had counted on getting some food from the old man. He took a downward step and then a second man came running out of the caretaker's shack. "Tom! Weber!" a voice called down to him.

Weber craned his neck and looked up again. The man who had just called to him was someone he knew, someone from the long-ago past. Fred Case, foreman of Lobo.

"Mr. Case," he cried, "I've been looking all over Lobo for you."

"I have been here all the time!" Case said. "I came here right after Miss Lily's no-good husband fired me."

Weber started quickly up the stairs and the caretaker did not again try to prevent his advance. He reached the top of the dam and went toward Case, hand outstretched.

The old timer shook his hand warmly. "What's happening at the ranch, Tom?" he asked fearfully.

"Lily's all right."

"She was yesterday afternoon!" Weber hesitated. "I'm not so sure now. Last night the place seemed to be stalked out with—"

"What weren't Lobo men?"

"What's going on? What's behind everything?" the rustling Alderton urged me.

Alderton and Denver are planning to take over the entire valley. Weber said soberly. "I came here because I've a feeling that there's going to be trouble."

"Horse," cried the caretaker. "What kind of trouble?"

"This dam is the key to Lobo Valley," Weber said. "I left here during the big drought 11 years ago. I still remember what Lobo Valley looked like then."

"I remember too," said Fred Case. "This dam has made all the difference in the world. Without it the valley'd be a desert."

"Maybe that's what Denver wants," suggested Weber. "A desert. You can buy desert land cheap and then if you build a new dam."

Fred Case whistled softly.

Partridge, Honsinger and Hopkins eluded the rear guard of the farmers without too much trouble. When they saw them lined up at intervals they made a sharp turn and putting their horses into a gallop, crossed the Barkeleyville Road and rode on to the Weber ranch. Once on it, they cut eastward and were soon galloping down the ramp by the river.

A man with a rifle challenged them, but they were passed through to a man named Newman, who seemed to be in charge in the absence of Mike Denver and Jeff Alderton.

Partridge told them what was wanted.

"We were getting ready to blast here," Newman said. "Another hour and we'd have been ready."

"You'll have to hold your boom-boom," Paul Partridge retorted. "Pile the stuff on a wagon."

There were six large boxes of dynamite.

Hopkins suddenly said, "Who's going to drive?"

"You," replied Partridge cheerfully.

"The wagon hits a bump and you won't find anything of the dynamite."

driver but his teeth

Honsinger, always so brash, regarded the dynamite dourly. "I never was much for driving a wagon."

"Neither was I," Partridge retorted, "but somebody's got to drive it." He thought for a moment. "We can draw straws."

"Wait a minute," Hopkins said suddenly. "We all got five hundred apiece. Why don't we hire one of these people to drive for us?"

The idea appealed to both Honsinger and Partridge, and they had a quick huddle. Then Partridge accosted Newman. "Look here, we need a driver for this wagon. There might be some trouble and me and the boys can't drive and fight at the same time. There's $100 for the driver."

Newman frowned. "A hundred for two hundred I'd drive it myself."

"Two hundred it is!"

Newman gulped, but drew a deep breath.

"Give me the money."

"When we get to the dam."

"The money now, or I don't drive," said Newman, angrily.

Partridge collected the money from the other gunfighters. He thrust the bills into Newman's hands. "Start rolling."

Young Demos to Hear Candidates

RUSSELLVILLE (UP)—Gov. Orval Faubus and gubernatorial candidate Chancellor Lee Ward of Paragould are scheduled to attend a Pope County Young Democrats Club reception here May 13.

The governor agreed to stop off for the reception while enroute to a high school commencement address at Coal Hill.

Ward accepted the invitation extended by the club, according to Jim Harrell, program chairman, at Little Rock, the office of Chris Finkbeiner, a third entry in the governor's race, said he had another engagement on that date. Whether he will be able to attend the reception depends on the time the other appointment is ended, the office said.

SMART BOY

Little Willie had just been vaccinated and the doctor started to put a bandage over the vaccination spot.

Willie objected—he wanted the bandage put on the other arm instead.

"Why, Willie," said the doctor, "the bandage should be on the sore arm so the boy at school won't hit it."

"Put it on the other arm, Doc," Willie insisted. "You don't know these guys."

HE NO LIKE—He hates this sort of thing—in a movie, that is. He's Ray Danton with his arms around his wife and co-star, Julia Adams. Ray thinks husband and wife love scenes are risky and can imperil the marriage. So in their new picture, "Flag Over Tarawa," another guy romances Julia, who will have nothing to do with Ray. And that's okay with Ray—on the movie set, that is.

QUEEN OF BROKEN HEARTS—Beautiful Soraya, ex-queen of Iran, is en route to the United States aboard the liner SS Constitution from Genoa, Italy. Listed simply on the ship's roster as a "housewife," the 23-year-old Soraya was divorced by the Shah because she bore him no male heir, which is required under Moslem law. The broken-hearted ex-queen, who says she "will always love the Shah," reportedly has been forbidden to speak of her private life with the Shah, under the terms of the divorce agreement. It is believed that the Shah gave her $140,000, a monthly pension of $4,200 and allowed her to keep several million dollars' worth of jewels.

Aged Bride, Young Hubby Honeymooning

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UP)—A 29-year-old bride, a great-grandmother, honeymooned at home today following a fancy hotel wedding and a televised reception.

The bride, Mrs. Laura Belle Wilson, announced "I may look old, but I don't feel that way," after the wedding ceremony in the governor's suite of the Van Orman Hotel Monday afternoon.

Her new husband, Jim Bough, who supplements his income by mowing lawns, grumbled a bit at the lack of television cameras during the wedding because "a lot of my friends are going to be watching."

But Bough beamed when he saw the television cameras set up to cover the reception. No pictures were allowed at the ceremony which was attended by 15 members of the family and about the same number of newsmen.

Democratic Mayor Thomas Lemon officiated at the 10-minute, double-ring ceremony. The couple had requested his services, pointing out they were "life-long Democrats."

Mrs. Wilson wore a light blue organza suit with a white hat and veil, and Bough wore a light summer suit.

The wedding had been delayed about a week because Mrs. Wilson had trouble producing legal evidence that she was 18 years old and of age to marry.

The new Mrs. Bough, who has five grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren, confided to newsmen "I'll always remember my marriage vows—they went straight to my heart."

"Isn't he a good-looking young man?"

Hotel Manager Robert Thamer, whose hotel footed the bill for the marriage and reception, estimated 100 persons attended the reception and 150 more milled about outside the building.

The newlyweds indicated they would spend a few days here and then visit Mrs. Bough's relatives in Johnston City, Ill. They were expected to pass up an invitation to spend an expensive honeymoon at a Miami Beach, Fla., hotel.

"The Boughs' long friendship began when Bough sold Mrs. Wilson a paper. Relatives of the couple said they were pleased by the marriage. Bough's mother, Mrs. Leola Blake, said she was "very happy."

Bough said he was not worried because his bride now would lose her $60 monthly old age assistance check.

"I can support both of us with my newspaper route and lawn mowing," Bough said.

Say Congress Should Stay in Session

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower and Republican congressional leaders agreed today that Congress ought to stay in session this year until it acts on broad labor reform legislation.

This feeling was reported to newsmen by Senate GOP leader William F. Knowland after today's weekly White House legislative conference. Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell also attended.

DOROTHY DIX

Maybe He'd Follow Grown If It Jumped Off Bridge

Dear Dorothy Dix: My boy friend and neither smokes nor drinks, but he is considering doing both, simply because "everyone else does it." He says he feels like a sissy when he constantly refuses cigarettes and highballs. I think he's foolish to adopt habits for which he is not already inclined. Goodness knows we acquire bad habits easily enough without going out of our way to learn them.

JESSICA
Dear Jessica: How right you are! To do things simply because "everyone" does them is the worst possible reason for acquiring bad habits. Tell your boy friend to put that energy into overcoming faults he already has. I bet he's the very man to raise all heck if you wear a chemise simply because all the other girls in your crowd have 'em.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a college student and have gone to camp for the past 11 years. This year I've been asked back as a coun-legislation during the past week, said there was a "general discussion" of labor at the conference. The Senate passed the welfare fund bill Monday night after rejecting all but one Republican-sponsored amendment.

The Senate bill would provide for registration and annual reports on the financial operations of employee welfare and pension funds covering more than 100 employees. Persons guilty of false reporting, embezzlement, kickbacks and other abuses would be subject to criminal prosecution.

An amendment to bar persons convicted of felonies from serving as officers or employees of welfare funds was the only one adopted. Five of Knowland's "labor bill of rights" amendments were defeated along with two administration proposals viewed as "pro-labor."

selor. However, I'm getting tired of it, and would like to spend the summer in town, get a job, and have more time with my boy friend. While my parents like the boy, they don't like the idea of my giving up camp.

MISS X
Dear X: I can't blame you for getting fed up with camp after 11 summers of it. It's about time you became adjusted to the adult world and I think the job idea is swell. Your parents are probably creatures of habit and can't picture you anywhere else at camp time.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I was married when I was 21, my wife 18. The marriage didn't work, so we were divorced four years ago and I took our little boy. My son and I are living with my parents. For the past two months I've been going with a girl who's 36—10 years older than I. My folks like her, she's good to my son but most of my friends think she's too old for me. We haven't decided anything definite about marriage, except to wait a year or so.

G. G.
Dear G. G.: Keep the friendship but don't make commitments. Apparently your girl friend has quins too. The waiting period should solve the problem. Such a difference at these ages rarely results in a happy marriage.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm going steady with a nice boy, but don't want to be tied down. I know that if I quit going steady with Hal, he won't ask me out again.

DOUBTFUL
Dear Doubtful: What you want is to have your cake, eat it and save some crumbs for a nice bread pudding. Well, dear, as many have found before you, you can't have everything. You simply must make the choice between Hal and the multitude. I certainly recommend the latter.

May Organize Softball League

Loop Would Be for Boys 15 and Older

Plans are now being initiated to organize a men and boys softball league within the city of Hope. Many boys, over the age of 15 are graduating from Pony League baseball each year.

As the set up has been, there has only been places for a very few of these boys on the Big League Baseball Team. It is believed that by organizing a city softball league, there would be plenty of places for these graduating Pony Leaguers as well as for a large number of men in town who are interested in participating in an organized sport.

All games would be played in Legion Park with at least two games per week being played by each team. An attempt will be made to organize teams as evenly as possible so as to make a well balanced league.

Some of the old heads around town will tell you that softball is equally as interesting a sport as baseball once you have played both. It is a fast game that requires a great deal of skill and is a wonderful player's sport.

If a four team league were organized it would require four sponsors at a fee of about $65 each. This fee would be used to buy bats, balls, bases and other playing equipment.

Anyone interested in playing softball this summer or in sponsoring a team should be present at a meeting in the City Hall Courtroom on Tuesday night, May 6th at 7:30.

All playing equipment purchased for this league will be bought at the cheapest prices available anywhere for a good quality of equipment so as to hold the sponsoring fee to a minimum.

Coach Broyles Makes Shifts in Backfield

FAYETTEVILLE (UP)—Coach Frank Broyles, shifted Fredgy Akers of Fayetteville from quarterback to left halfback Tuesday and explained he wanted to take advantage of the Fayetteville junior's speed.

"We think Akers is a fine football player and we want to be sure to give him plenty of opportunity to play," said Broyles. He may even alternate between quarterback and halfback.

Akers has been running in the Razorbacks' third unit, behind James Monroe of Texarkana, Tex. and Mike Conney of Tyler, Tex. Broyles said the Razorbacks were "hooking good" in their work on his "belly" offense maneuver, which they began Tuesday.

Another promotion in Tuesday's session was right tackle Paul Henderson, The Tulsa, Okla., lineman was sent to the Red team to replace Ed Shank of Fayetteville. Broyles said it was "unusual improvement" on the part of Henderson rather than inferior work on the part of Shank which prompted the change.

A bruise foot-keep Don Stone of Fayetteville out of action Tuesday. He hurt the foot in Saturday's scrimmage.

Broyles said the Razorbacks would spend the rest of the week concentrating on fundamentals before their Red-White team game at Little Rock Saturday night. No practice is scheduled for Friday.

Pirates Making Signs Like Contenders

By FRED DOWN

United Press Sports Writer
The Pittsburgh Pirates are off and running like contenders—and the word is out that this time it may not be a false alarm.

The Pirates matched the season's longest National League winning streak when they beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 7-1, Tuesday night for their fourth straight victory. The league's worst road team last season when they had a 26-51 record away from home, they've won five of seven on foreign soil this year.
